

All About Caribou

By: Tayler Peebles

The caribou eat grass seeds in Canada. I will be telling you about a caribou. I picked the caribou because I love animals. I learnt about food, habitat, what they look like, and facts.

Caribou is an important animal to Canada.

I will be telling you about the food that the caribou eat. They eat grass seeds, mushrooms, leaves, and shrubs. They also eat lichen in the winter. They are plant eaters. That's all about the food they eat.

I will be telling you about where the caribou live. They live in the forest. They like the cold. They live by swamps and rivers. That's all about the caribou's habitat.

I will be telling you about what the caribou looks like. They look like reindeer. They have big horns and they are brown and white. They are part of the deer family. Caribou weigh about 350-700 pounds. That is all about what a caribou looks like.

The Caribou is a plant eater. They are brown and white. They live in the forest. This is all about the caribou and what they eat, where they live, and what they look like. That's all about caribou. Thank you for reading.